 Re: Kasold from Peterson to KTA

On October 7, 2003 the City Commission held a public hearing on the advisability of the construction of Kasold Drive from Peterson Road to the KTA. At the public hearing several residents, owners, and developers expressed concerns about costs, financing, assessment methods, and the formation of the benefit district. The City Commission directed Staff to further explore options and provide some alternatives.

Kasold Drive is a minor arterial. The proposed improvements would include a three-lane roadway (one lane in each direction, and a center turn lane) at a 40-foot width, curb and gutter, storm sewer, and sidewalks on both sides. The estimated cost of construction and engineering is $2,425,000.

Attached are several spreadsheets providing the estimated assessments for various scenarios. The summary sheets provide a comparative look at how the different methods affect each lot. Additionally, various rates of City participation are included. For discussion I will use the summary page for which a City participation rate of 10% was assumed unless specified. The various methods (on the summary sheet) include:

- A. Square Footage - City at 0% - Benefit District at 100%
- B. Square Footage - City at 10% - Benefit District at 90%
- C. Square Footage - Expanded Benefit District which includes 103 additional properties west of the original benefit district.
City at 10% - Benefit District at 90%
- D. Front Footage - City at 10% - Benefit District at 90%
- E. Appraised Value - City at 10% - Benefit District at 90%
- F. G. H. Provides for decreasing levels (%) of benefit as the property is further removed from the improvements. The areas are divided 25%, 15%, and 10% and the costs associated with those areas are spread by the square footage of each lot within the area proportionately.
- I. Equal/equivalent distribution based on a per residential/living/dwelling unit or equivalent. Column I is with a City participation rate of 0%. A $30/month/unit would be required to pay for the improvement.
- J. Equal/equivalent distribution at a $20/month/unit cost. This would require a City contribution of 33% (or $800,000).

For discussion purposes, highlighted in green is a typical property of 8,817 square feet:
(See spread sheet labeled various City Participation Rates and summary.)

Method Assessment

Square Footage	Estimated Assessment	$ / Month for 10 Yrs.
0% City participation	$3,989.00	$33.00/month
10% City Participation	3,590.00	30.00/month
Expanded Benefit District	3,032.00	25.26/month
25% City participation	2,992.00	24.93/month

50% City participation	1,994.00	17.00/month
Front Footage	Estimated Assessment	$ / Month for 10 Yrs.
0% City participation	$4,987.19	$41.00/month
10% City participation	4,488.46	37.00/month
25% City participation	3,740.38	31.00/month
50% City participation	2,499.59	21.00/month

For the particular example provided, the costs to this property are less on a square footage basis than a front footage basis. It is important to understand that the total expenditure is the same, for each level of City participation. The difference in costs between a square footage and a front footage method of assessment is a shifting of costs from one property to another. Notice the two cells shaded in purple, where the square footage calculations are significantly higher than the front footage calculations.

The expansion of the benefit district to include the area northwest amounts to a 15% reduction in costs for the originally proposed benefit district properties. This option would require a new public hearing and notification to an additional 103 properties (based on square footage with 10% City participation).

The appraised values were based from the Douglas County appraisal records for 2003. There are some very apparent problems with dividing the costs using the appraised value method for this project. For example, the Hutton Farm/Tuckaway North property was not platted/zoned/ nor annexed to the City when the 2003 values were established. The appraised value of the property is only $3,080. This method takes a property value at a given time. Therefore, property values in newly developing areas may not be an accurate reflection of the completed development value.

The “25-15-10” spreads the cost (benefit) at a decreasing rate the further a property is removed from the improvements. The yellow blocks are properties that, due to their distance away from the improvements, would not be included within a benefit district under this method (22 single lots).

The final two columns are based on an equal benefit to all lots/residences within the benefit district. The costs for the improvements at this time are conservative. One option for Commission consideration could be to establish a cost (dollar amount) for each equivalent dwelling unit and the City would pay any remaining amount. With a $20/month/dwelling unit cost established, this would provide $1.642 million for the project by the benefit district.

Attachment A provides a survey of how Kansas communities and others have been spreading costs to benefit districts. Square footage and front footage are/have been used by all communities. What is being called a “fractional” or “equal/equivalent basis” or “unit basis” is also widely used. This method would spread the costs equally per lot regardless of size, as was done on Paterson Road in 1995. In the case where a denser usage of property is allowed, comparative/equivalent percentage would be based on square footage, or traffic generated.

No single community had all the answers, and methods used for each project could change from one project to the next. Many communities expressed that their current practices may be changing as their commissions review existing policies.

Finally, there is the option of placing this project on KDOT's 5-year plan. Currently the 5-year plan contains projects through the year 2007. If desired, priorities could be reassigned and this project could be moved to a 2006 construction year in place of currently scheduled projects. The KDOT program is an 80/20 construction cost share with the City. The City would also pay for any right-of-way, utility relocation, and engineering. The longer the improvements are delayed the more development will occur which will have to be accommodated and costs will increase.

Please feel free to call should you have any questions.

My town also uses special benefited districts for all types of public works projects. The distribution of the cost should be at a unit that is fair to the users. This can be based upon % impervious surface (drainage districts), water usage, assessed value, or other factors as needed. Be sure to have a defined formula to avoid confusion (and lawsuits). NYS has limits as to the max. charge for some districts. One option we have used is to create a townwide district to share in a portion of the cost of the work while the benefited area pays a higher proportion of the cost.

BEWARE, your state laws may dictate the procedures to create a benefited district. Typically a majority of assessed value and property owners must be in favor of the project.

Good luck.

The City of Garden City uses these same statutes as Chuck. One variation we have used in the past few years is to set a platted residential lot equal to 1.0 unit and then spread based upon the total number of lots in the benefit district. This works really well in single family residential areas where lot sizes may vary, but the impact on the assessed improvement from a SFR on a 7000 sf lot is the same as the impact from an 8000 sf lot. We've even used this in multiple land use benefit districts, you just need to be able to justify how many units are assigned per commercial or multi-family lot.

In an effort not to get over extended, we cap the number of lots with specials by a single developer as well as a grand total at any time. We allow specials for up to 3 improvements chosen by the developer from curb & gutter w/storm sewer, street paving, sanitary sewer, off-site electric (we have our own electric distribution utility), or on-site electric. In determining the developer & total lots under specials, a lot with 3 specials is a full lot, 2 specials = 2/3 lot and 1 special = 1/3 lot. A lot comes off the developers total when it has a building permit on it or is no longer owned by the developer, we watch for spin off ownerships too.

The same process is available in Nevada in NRS 271, the consolidated improvement district statute. The state requires all methods be justified except front footage. We have used demand (for utilities) based on zoning type and density, area, front foot and combinations of the proceeding. My experience is keep it simple as you will need to be able to explain how you got where you did in a very short amount of time to a hostile audience of lay persons...

In Clark County, NV, we have Special Improvement Districts, which are funded through the sale of bonds. Property owners come to us asking that X/Y/Z improvements be installed. We provide them with a project-per-foot cost. It's a back-and-forth process until the majority of homeowners agree to the type of off-sites to be constructed (i.e., sanitary sewers are the most expensive item, so they may decide not to include that in their project). All property owners are charged per foot of frontage (if the construction is within a subdivision); or they are charged a percentage of the total if the improvements are not directly in front of their property, but they have direct benefit from it. The property owners can pay their total up front, or they have two payment plans to choose from. Either way, the bonds have been repaid within 10 years from construction.

West Allis, Wisconsin uses special assessments for street improvements based on front foot with reductions for long side (corner lots).

New installations of underground utilities would also be special assessed based on front foot, but repairs/relays would be paid for through user/utility fees. I believe using front foot is fairly common in Wisconsin, but developers have asked me to place equal assessment on lots in their subdivisions, which I have done. They want this mostly to avoid the corner lots from getting a big hit.

Request for information:
I am with the City of Lawrence, Kansas and am seeking information on financing of infrastructure improvements.

The Kansas Statutes allow certain infrastructure improvements to be financed through Benefit Districts. This is basically a way for the street, sanitary sewers, or water mains development to be financed by a City and the costs (plus interest) are charged back to the developing (benefiting) area over a number of years through assessments on property taxes. There are specific criteria by which these costs can be divided between benefiting properties. Typically those methods include: the front footage along a street, the square footage within the benefit district, or the appraised values of the properties. The City Commission has asked what other communities are doing?

Thanks,

Chuck

I am with Burgess & Niple. We have assisted communities in Ohio and Arizona with Benefit Districts. In Ohio they are called assessment districts. In Arizona they are called improvement districts. Both states have a variation of the methods Kansas appears to have. The preference seems to be on a frontage or benefiting square footage basis. Frequently they are based on a combination of the two. The appraised value is not used hardly at all for street, water and sewer. The frontage basis is used for streets and sidewalks. The frontage and square footage basis are frequently used for drainage, water and sewer. If a street project also has water and sewer, a combination of square footage and frontage is normally used. The thought is that water and sewer improvements are to provide the service to the property. The frontage of the property on a street is usually the benefit from a street project. Drainage improvements are normally on a frontage and square footage basis.

We could go on and on about the variation available. We usually work close with an attorney experienced with assessment or improvement districts. We provide the reasons the street and utilities are sized the way they are and the attorney works with us on what parameters the law in each state requires.

Hope this helped some.

Recent experience in Ottawa is that streets are built based on "front feet" and sewers have been constructed based on square footage.

Chuck,

We have created benefit districts only a couple of time for development costs for developments. One was for an industrial park, the other for a commercial center. We have not done benefit districts for residential development. The two development benefit districts that we have done were assessed on a per square foot basis on each lot. Right of way and open space was subtracted from the areas to be assessed.

Chuck - The Town of Narragansett RI uses assessment programs to finance major sewer projects, on a benefiting property owner basis. Quite a bit of our Town was developed before sewer treatment plants were built, so exiting neighborhoods petition the Town Council to have sewers installed. We then prepare an estimate for the project and an estimate for the assessment (on a per unit basis, with each single family house being a unit). The entire Town gets to vote on this as a general referendum (since the bond issue will be backed by the financial credit of the Town as a whole), but only the benefiting property owners get an assessment. The assessments are structured like a mortgage, over 20 years, with interest (no pre-payment penalties). They run with the land, so that the unpaid balance transfers to the new owner, if sold. Rhode Island has a State Clean Water Finance Agency that uses EPA grants to leverage funds - they just did a State-wide borrowing for sewer projects that resulted in an interest rate less than 2%. We needed State General Assembly approval for the bond referendum, as well as the financing method (per unit assessment program). You'll have to check with your legal counsel on this. Let me know if further info is needed. Jeff Ceasrine Town Engineer Narragansett RI

I've always developed two unit costs when a pure frontage cost is not fair or equitable. To do this I develop unit cost per assessable foot and this distributes the affect of corner lots to all properties. This is preferred by most developers and has never been contested over the 15 years that I have been handling assessments for public works movements

Kasold - Peterson to KTA

Kasold is designated as a major arterial street. The ultimate configuration will include four lanes with a center median / turnig access at intersecting streets. This is a similar configuration to Kasold south of Peterson and the bridge over the KTA will also be four lanes wide. The estimated construction cost for this section would be an additional $500,000 bringing the total to $2,925,000. BD to pay only for 20% of three lane facility, City to pay for added width (80% by KDOT) and engineering.

Kasold - Peterson to KTA

Kasold is designated as a major arterial street. The ultimate configuration will include four lanes with a center median / turnig access at intersecting streets. This is a similar configuration to Kasold south of Peterson and the bridge over the KTA will also be four lanes wide. The estimated construction cost for this section would be an additional $500,000 bringing the total to $2,925,000.
