Local planning and policy decisions are integral to achieving community health goals and improving health outcomes over the long term. Please join us for this important workshop on integrating health into community-decision making.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- Increase local and regional understanding of the importance of considering health outcomes in all policy and community planning decisions
- Increase understanding of the emerging practice of health impact assessments (HIA) and other "Health in All Policies" (HiAP) strategies for incorporating public health information, expertise, and priorities into community decision-making
- Become familiar with the current Safe Routes To School (SRTS) planning project and identify upcoming decision points that would benefit from information on health impacts
